

KELSEY TIMMERMAN

MADE IN AMERICA

WHEN IT COMES TO CLOTHING, OTHERS MAKE IT, AND WE HAVE IT MADE.

While staring at a pile of clothes, Kelsey Timmerman noticed the tag of his favorite T-shirt. He read the tag: MADE IN HONDURAS. And his global quest to answer the question Where am I wearing? began.

Bouncing between the worlds of impoverished workers in Cambodia, Bangladesh, and beyond and his own Western lifestyle, Timmerman puts a human face on the issues of globalization and invites readers to formulate their own conclusions and solutions.

Where Am I Wearing? is perfect for class adoptions.

I'm a college junior at Rutgers and I just read your book for a research paper... I have long struggled to cope with the realities under which my clothes were made. I really appreciated getting to see the personal side of this issue, completely stripped of politics. Where Am I Wearing? affected me in a personal way.
